

LIFT-OFF
To
High Altitude Leadership

Presentation Synopsis

High Altitude Leadership is an authoritative and motivational presentation that encourages participants to elevate their leadership standards

With a commitment to having leaders step up to their potential, Ms. Shotton presents a Six Stage plan to propel them out of insular, limited perceptions. She outlines a flight plan for converting stubborn challenges into opportunities for higher altitude leadership.

Today's increasingly complex and unpredictable business, social and political environments tempt leaders to veer towards measuring their institutions and people as if they were black and white assets on a balance sheet. With 60 hour workweeks, increasing regulation and oversight and divergent and often unrealistic expectations from seemingly incompatible constituents, who can blame leaders for losing sight of how they can shift and shape the lives of others. Under relentless external pressure it is easy for leaders to forget the scope of their influence and their responsibility to lead others towards their highest potential; to reach for true contribution, purpose and meaning in their own lives and the lives of those affected by their leadership.

High Altitude Leadership offers participants an opportunity to look at their positions through a wide angle lens. Backed with over 35 years in the CEO chair, 15 years in the left seat of an airplane, and recognized as an Entrepreneur and Leadership Consultant, Ms. Shotton passionately delivers a strong message of potential and possibility to our world's leaders and involves the participants in an exploration of their greatness.

This 60 minute presentation includes 20 minutes of audience participation and is supported by audio/video imagery.
